

Determination of Material Issues (Materialities) for Sustainable Management

JSP Corporation (Head office: Chiyoda-ku, Tokyo; President: Tomohiko Okubo) has a strong commitment to sustainability management for achieving its corporate philosophy, “Creatively and Actively Contribute to Society”, and the goals of medium-term business plan, “Change for Growth”. On April 1, 2021, JSP Corporation established the Sustainability Promotion Department to increase its corporate value by earning the trust and sympathy of a wide range of stakeholders through contributions of its business activities to society.

JSP Corporation has determined material issues (materialities) to define for all stakeholders the framework for sustainability management and the activities concerning these issues. The Board of Directors approved this materiality statement today. This release explains these issues, how they were selected and the organizational structure used for sustainability activities.

Materialities

The creation of shared value: Materialities concerning the benefits of JSP Corporation businesses and products

- (1) Contributions of environmentally responsible products
- (2) Contributions to recycling plastic resources
- (3) Contributions to mitigation climate change
- (4) Contributions involving food and healthy living
- (5) Contributions to safety

Materiality concerning the environment

- (1) Activities for protecting the environment

Materialities concerning society

- (1) Improve the human resources development
- (2) Fostering the culture of a rewarding workplace
- (3) Secure the occupational safety
- (4) Strengthen the information system foundation

Materiality concerning corporate governance

- (1) Strengthen the corporate governance

More information is available on the website below.

https://www.co-jsp.co.jp/ir/upload_file/m000-/materiality.pdf

Inquiries:

JSP Corporation

Public and Investor Relations Department/Sustainability Promotion Department

TEL: +81-3-6212-6306